

Renting in the private sector? You can be part of Private Tenant Voice!

If you rent your home from a private landlord (not social housing), you can be part of Private Tenant Voice: a project that supports tenants with advice and training.

We're holding an event aimed at black and minority ethnic private rented sector tenants, including asylum seekers, refugees, migrant workers and their families. You'll be able to find out more about the Private Tenant Voice:

- Monday, 18 January 2016
- 10am to 2pm
- Brunswick Methodist Church
(just off Northumberland Street – full address: Brunswick Place, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE1 7BJ)

Come along to find out how you can be involved, discuss your experiences, hear a short presentation from Andrea Sellers of Ben Hoare Bell solicitors, and enjoy a free international buffet lunch.

Background

In Newcastle, 22 per cent of households rent in the private sector. Nearly half of those properties are of a poor quality. Private Tenant Voice works with tenants to ensure that they know their rights and are supported when communicating with landlords. Private Tenant Voice also acts as a forum to represent the views and experiences of tenants.

Supporting you to access our meeting

We can support you to attend the meeting by booking an interpreter (please let us know at least one week's before meeting), paying your travel expenses, and contributing to your childcare expenses.
